

Contents Volume 12

Vol. 12, Nos. 1-3 (June 1990)

Special Issue: Strategies for Occupational Accident Prevention

Preface

L. Harms-Ringdahl and C. Sundström-Frisk (Stockholm, Sweden) vii

SOCIETAL STRATEGIES AND RISK ASSESSMENT 1

Safety rules OK? Possibilities and limitations in behavioural safety strategies

A.R. Hale (Delft, The Netherlands) 3

Internal control: A strategy for occupational safety and health. Experiences from Norway

J. Hovden and R.K. Tinmannsvik (Trondheim, Norway) 21

Setting safety priorities. A technical and social process

G. Rowe (Melbourne, Vic., Australia) 31

Abstracts 41

International safety rating system. New Zealand's experience with a successful strategy

(D.R.S. Pringle and A.E. Brown)

Safety target agreement (A. Soued)

Chemical accidents and disasters in Kenya (H.A. Onyoyo)

Priority to key areas and management by results in the national accident prevention policy (L.-M. Bjurström)

Legal aspects of occupational accident prevention (I.L. Feitshans)

STRATEGIES ON COMPANY LEVEL: Management and organization 47

Safety control in design — Experiences from an offshore project

U. Kjellén (Stabekk, Norway) 49

Expert systems in safety management

J. Suokas, P. Heino (Tampere, Finland) and I. Karvonen (Espoo, Finland) 63

Costs of occupational accidents in the Nordic furniture industry (Sweden, Norway, Finland)

A. Söderqvist (Stockholm, Sweden), T. Rundmo (Trondheim, Norway) and M.

Aaltonen (Vantaa, Finland) 79

On economic evaluation of systematic safety work at companies

L. Harms-Ringdahl (Stockholm, Sweden) 89

Abstracts 99

Real indirect costs of work accidents: Results from our new model (B. Brody, P.C.

Rohan, Y. Létourneau and A. Poirier)

Safety climate in construction sites (N. Dedobbeleer and F. Béland)

Production organization, accident risk and preventive strategies in the sawmill industry (E. Cloutier and L. Laflamme)

Safety management — A joint concern for the local factory personnel (A. Seppälä)

Can management control health and safety at work? (K. Frick)

Improving accident investigation at two case companies: Evaluation of results (J. Lepistö)

Accident prevention and safety engineers: Strategies based on an inventory of activities within one industrial sector (E. Menckel)

How to prevent falling accidents in construction industry (A. Lindblad)

STRATEGIES ON COMPANY LEVEL: Behavioural approaches 105

On strategies and methods in company safety work: From informational to motivational

Contents Volume 12

Vol. 12, Nos. 1-3 (June 1990)

Special Issue: Strategies for Occupational Accident Prevention

Preface

L. Harms-Ringdahl and C. Sundström-Frisk (Stockholm, Sweden) vii

SOCIETAL STRATEGIES AND RISK ASSESSMENT 1

Safety rules OK? Possibilities and limitations in behavioural safety strategies

A.R. Hale (Delft, The Netherlands) 3

Internal control: A strategy for occupational safety and health. Experiences from Norway

J. Hovden and R.K. Tinmannsvik (Trondheim, Norway) 21

Setting safety priorities. A technical and social process

G. Rowe (Melbourne, Vic., Australia) 31

Abstracts 41

International safety rating system. New Zealand's experience with a successful strategy

(D.R.S. Pringle and A.E. Brown)

Safety target agreement (A. Soued)

Chemical accidents and disasters in Kenya (H.A. Onyoyo)

Priority to key areas and management by results in the national accident prevention policy (L.-M. Bjurström)

Legal aspects of occupational accident prevention (I.L. Feitshans)

STRATEGIES ON COMPANY LEVEL: Management and organization 47

Safety control in design — Experiences from an offshore project

U. Kjellén (Stabekk, Norway) 49

Expert systems in safety management

J. Suokas, P. Heino (Tampere, Finland) and I. Karvonen (Espoo, Finland) 63

Costs of occupational accidents in the Nordic furniture industry (Sweden, Norway, Finland)

A. Söderqvist (Stockholm, Sweden), T. Rundmo (Trondheim, Norway) and M.

Aaltonen (Vantaa, Finland) 79

On economic evaluation of systematic safety work at companies

L. Harms-Ringdahl (Stockholm, Sweden) 89

Abstracts 99

Real indirect costs of work accidents: Results from our new model (B. Brody, P.C.

Rohan, Y. Létourneau and A. Poirier)

Safety climate in construction sites (N. Dedobbeleer and F. Béland)

Production organization, accident risk and preventive strategies in the sawmill industry (E. Cloutier and L. Laflamme)

Safety management — A joint concern for the local factory personnel (A. Seppälä)

Can management control health and safety at work? (K. Frick)

Improving accident investigation at two case companies: Evaluation of results (J. Lepistö)

Accident prevention and safety engineers: Strategies based on an inventory of activities within one industrial sector (E. Menckel)

How to prevent falling accidents in construction industry (A. Lindblad)

STRATEGIES ON COMPANY LEVEL: Behavioural approaches 105

On strategies and methods in company safety work: From informational to motivational

strategies
J. Saari (Montreal, Que., Canada)	107
Training non-specialists in diagnosing and changing working conditions in sawmills
S. Montreuil (Montreal, Que., Canada)	119
Abstracts	131
The feedback model as a means to change risk behaviour: Experiences from a study in a slaughterhouse (L.-E. Warg)
Possibilities of accident prevention in reindeer herding work (A. Pekkarinen and H. Anttonen)
Ergonomic aspects of risk control associated with the impact of new technology — The vehicle design and driving performance (S. Ghosal)
Organizational factors and risk-taking in occupational accidents (S. Salminen, J. Saari and K.L. Saarela)
The role of worker's behaviour and accomplishment in prevention of accidents and injuries (Y.F. Yu)
Structured group discussions about motives for unsafe behaviours: Effects on risk taking behaviour and safety efforts (C. Sundström-Frisk)
TECHNICAL SYSTEMS AND EQUIPMENT
Use of safety analysis in automatic production systems
T. Rundmo, T. Sten (Trondheim, Norway) and U. Kjellén (Stabekk, Norway)	139
Abstracts	149
Production adapted safety system (H. Sjöström)
Intelligent safety systems provide production adapted safety (T. Malm and J. Suominen)
Epidemiological studies and design of agricultural implements (R. Patel and D. Mohan)
A pragmatic approach to preventing occupational accidents — The development of technical improvements (P.-O. Axelsson)
THE ACCIDENT PHENOMENON	153
A better understanding of occupational accident genesis to improve safety in the workplace
L. Laflamme (Solna, Sweden)	155
Injuries related to the aspects of shift working — A comparison of different offshore shift arrangements
Ø. Lauridsen and T. Tønnesen (Stavanger, Norway)	167
Etiological differences between accidental and non-accidental occupational overexertion injuries
R. Andersson (Sundbyberg, Sweden), K. Kemmlert and Å. Kilbom (Solna, Sweden)	177
Abstracts	187
Finding the proximal causes of loss incidents using the universal model (R. McClay)
Fatal occupational injury and energy exchange: A replication of Kriebel's model (J.E. Cone, D. Makofsky and A. Daponte)
Time and accidents — A register study (L. Hallsten)
INFORMATION SYSTEMS	189
The use of a national information system for work induced injuries. A local and regional perspective
A.E. Lindén (Solna, Sweden)	191
Abstracts	199
Artificial intelligence and other modern information technology: How these tools are making new accident prevention strategies possible (K. King)
Validity of trauma reporting in the agricultural community (S.G. Gerberich, R.W.

Gibson, P.W. Gunderson, L.J. Melton III, R. French, C. Renier, A.G. Erdman, J.A. True, P. Carr and J.D. Elkington)
A modular system for occupational injury coding based on the Haddon matrix (D.I. Clemmer)
A model for occupational accident surveillance and prevention at the regional level in Italy (L. Arduini, G. Costa, M. De Maria and G. Pianosi)
An information system for industrial safety to improve quality, productivity and competitiveness (J.I. Barancik, C.F. Kramer and H.C. Thode, Jr.)
Comprehensive accident investigations: A targeted contribution towards preventing accidents with automated machinery (T. Backström and M. Jensfelt-Döös)
EPIDEMIOLOGICAL APPROACHES	205
Behavioural epidemiology as a tool for accident research
A. Williamson and A.-M. Feyer (Sydney, NSW, Australia)	207
Work-related fatal injuries in older California workers, 1979-1985
J.F. Krauss, J. Macurda, J. Sahl and C. Anderson (Los Angeles, CA, U.S.A.)	223
Occupational injuries among agricultural workers in rural Haryana, India
M. Varghese and D. Mohan (New Delhi, India)	237
Abstracts	245
Surveillance of fatal occupational injuries in California — Data sources and strategies for prevention (J.E. Cone, R.J. Harrison and A. Daponte)
The use of hospital based injury surveillance systems in determining missing reports on the official occupational accident registers (Ø. Ueland)
Prevention of work accidents in civil construction in the city of Ribeirão Preto, Brazil (J.C. Barros, Jr., E. Bim, R.F. Ono and M.L.C.C. Robazzi)
Severe occupational accidents (E. Broberg)
Injury patterns in work-related fatalities (F.M. Blyth, M.S. Frommer and J.E. Harrison)
A study of health, working conditions, and working life of female shiftworkers in a large textile industry in Thailand (P. Chavalitsakulchai and H. Shahnava)
APPENDIX	251
Declaration on Prevention of Occupational Accidents in Developing Countries	253
 Vol. 12, No. 4 (July 1990)
Proof of shoelip-resistance by a walking traction test
D.P. Manning, C. Jones and M. Bruce (Liverpool, U.K.)	255
Safety engineers and accident prevention — an inventory of activities within one industrial sector in Sweden
E. Menckel (Solna, Sundbyberg, Sweden)	271
Permanent occupational disabilities among Swedish metal workers in 1986
T.J. Larsson (Stockholm, Sweden)	283
Severe hand injuries among Swedish farmers
T.J. Larsson (Stockholm, Sweden)	295
De l'analyse des données à une démarche d'expression des travailleurs: Une approche intégrée de la prévention
J.-P. Brun (Montréal, Qué., Canada)	307
Forthcoming Event	321
Translations Available	322
Author Index Volume 12	325

